

VIEWPOINTS

Gov. Newsom must mop up Brown's water mess

BY JONAS MINTON SPECIAL TO THE SACRAMENTO BEE
FEBRUARY 05, 2019 12:01 AM, UPDATED FEBRUARY 05, 2019 01:01 AM

The twin tunnels would take water from the Sacramento River and transport it under the Delta. See which islands and rivers they would cross.

BY SHARON OKADA

By continuing to use this site, you give your consent to our use of cookies for analytics, personalization and ads. Read more

Despite many high priority issues on his plate, one of Gov. Gavin Newsom's first tests will be how he deals with California's water challenges and opportunities. Unfortunately, in the last days of his term Gov. Jerry Brown made a bad bargain with the Trump administration and special interests. It's yet another mess for the new governor to mop up.

During his last month, Brown quietly signed an agreement with the Trump administration to transfer water from Southern California and portions of the Bay Area to corporate farms in the San Joaquin Valley. In return, the Trump administration dropped its threatened opposition to Brown's legacy project — the massive tunnels that would divert water from the San Francisco Bay Delta. This was done with no public notice, hearing or environmental analysis.

Scientists have concluded that the effects of this closed-door deal are likely to cause the extinction of multiple California fish species. As a result, there are already over 20 lawsuits from water districts, farmers and environmentalists.

The deal helps saddle taxpayers and water users with billions of dollars of debt for tunnels whose costs estimates have already soared from $3 billion to $19.9 billion, not including interest. And that's the estimate before securing right-of-ways or turning any shovels.

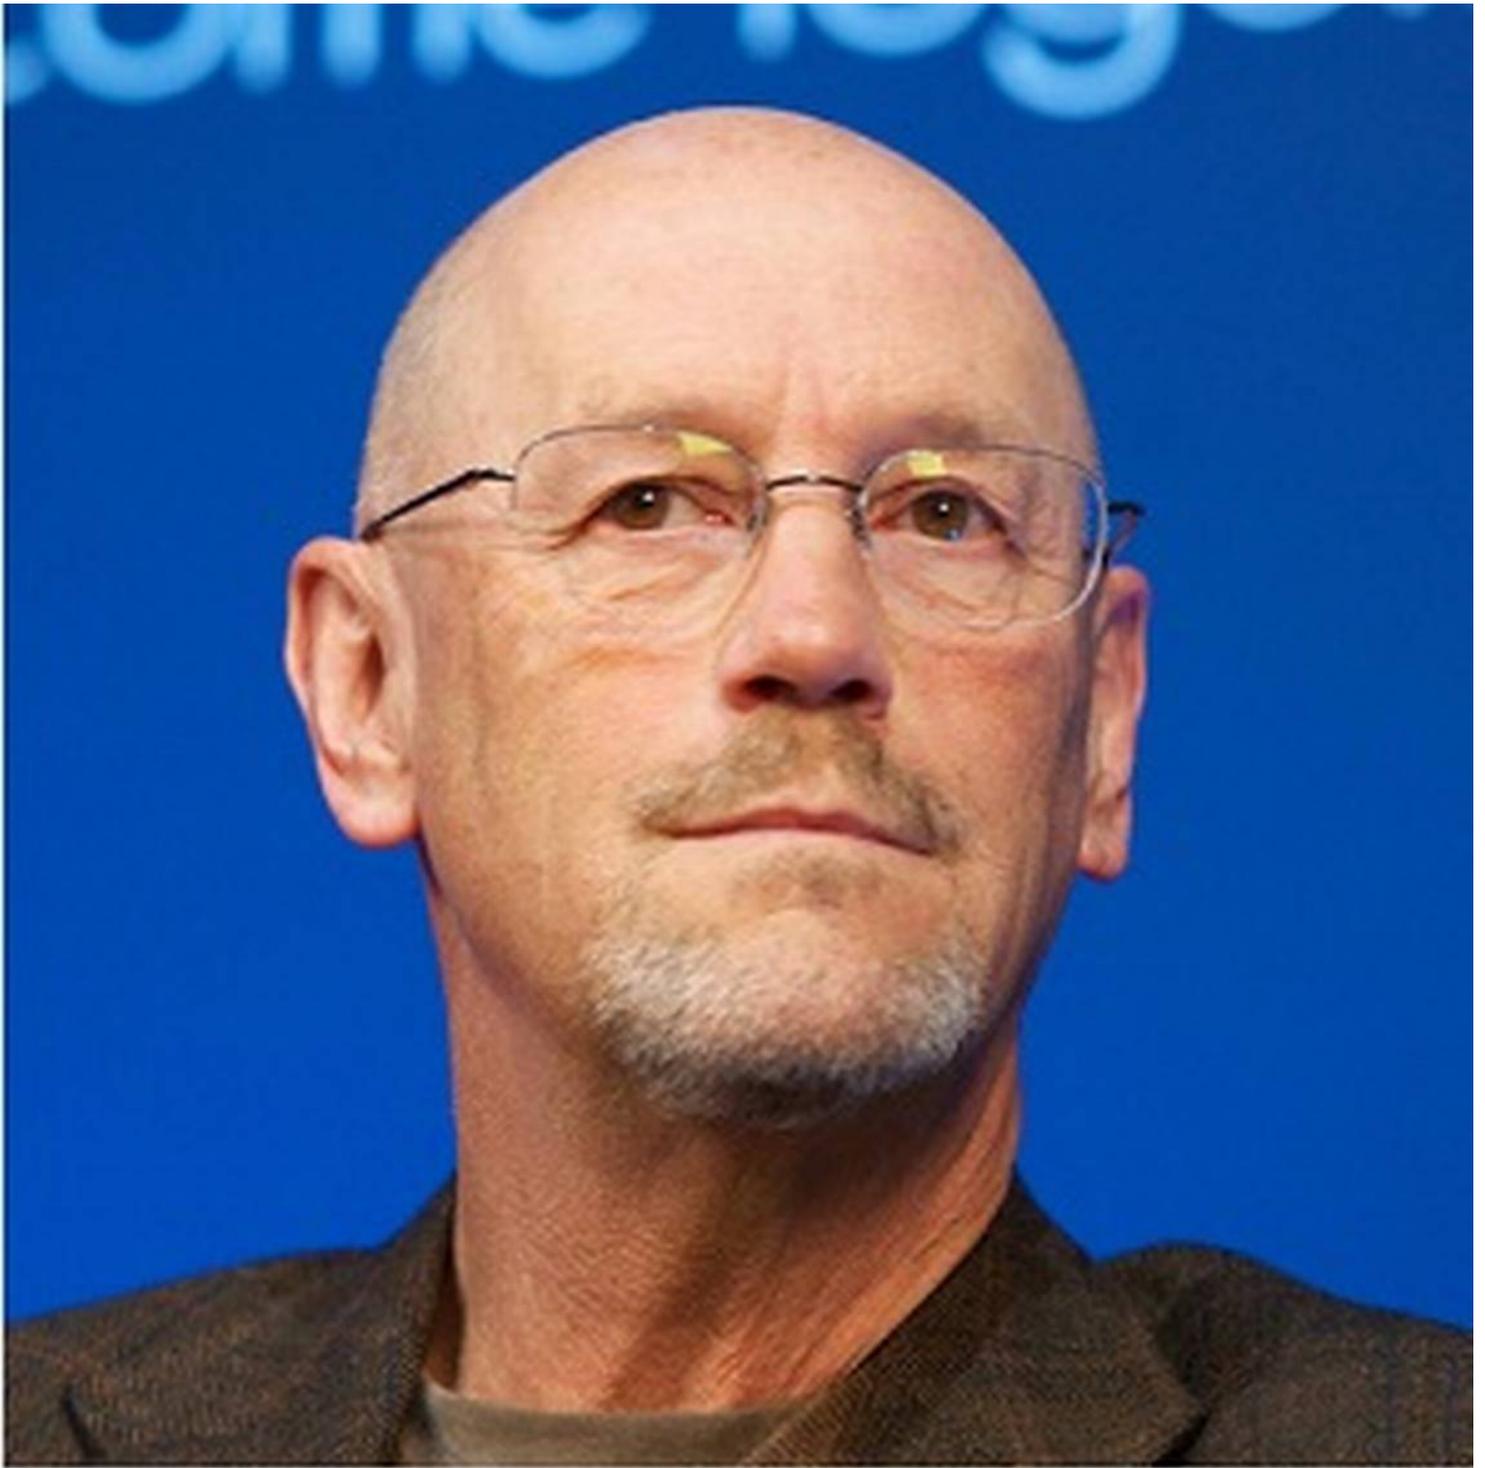

This massive debt would limit the state's financial ability to ensure that disadvantaged communities get safe drinking water. The basic human right to water for hundreds of thousands of Californians would be kept in the back of the line behind Brown's vanity tunnels project.

OPINION

Now, the Trump administration and water special interests are pushing the new governor to go further and gut water quality protections for the Bay Delta and the state's rivers from north of Redding all the way south to Bakersfield. After years of scientific study and countless hours of public input, the State Water Resources Control Board is poised to adopt standards that would protect these waters for all beneficial uses, including drinking, bathing, businesses, farming and the environment.

This requires careful balancing because water is not unlimited. Yet water special interests are now pressuring Gov. Newsom to replace the leadership on this state board that has maintained this careful balance.

Jonas Minton

Modern technology — including water recycling, stormwater capture, groundwater cleanup and improved water use efficiency — means Californians should continue to receive reliable supplies of highest quality water. In fact, many progressive water districts are already prudently investing in these 21st century solutions to provide reliable supplies of safe water to their customers.

No doubt Gov. Newsom would prefer to focus on other issues before having to deal with the water mess he inherited. However, the next two months will be critical for making key appointments and decisions.

At his inauguration, Gov. Newsom's son, Dutch, symbolized our new governor's tremendous responsibility to the future. Will he create a legacy of sustainable water management for all uses? Or will he preside over the extinction of species?

Jonas Minton is senior water policy advisor at the Planning and Conservation League and former deputy director at the California Department of Water Resources.

COMMENTS ▾

Don't Lock Me Out

Small-dollar loans help millions of Californians manage financial emergencies.

AB 539 makes it harder to get a loan when you need one.

LEARN MORE

By continuing to use this site, you give your consent to our use of cookies for analytics, personalization and ads. Read more

Painting the Delta

Homeless in Sacramento

VIEW MORE VIDEO →

TRENDING STORIES

6 injured in early morning shooting at Oceano Dunes, suspected gunman arrested

MAY 05, 2019 07:35 AM

A swarm of small earthquakes strikes Pacific Ocean off Northern California coast

MAY 05, 2019 08:53 AM

Three dead, one injured in Knights Landing after driver crashes into parked trailer

MAY 05, 2019 11:15 AM

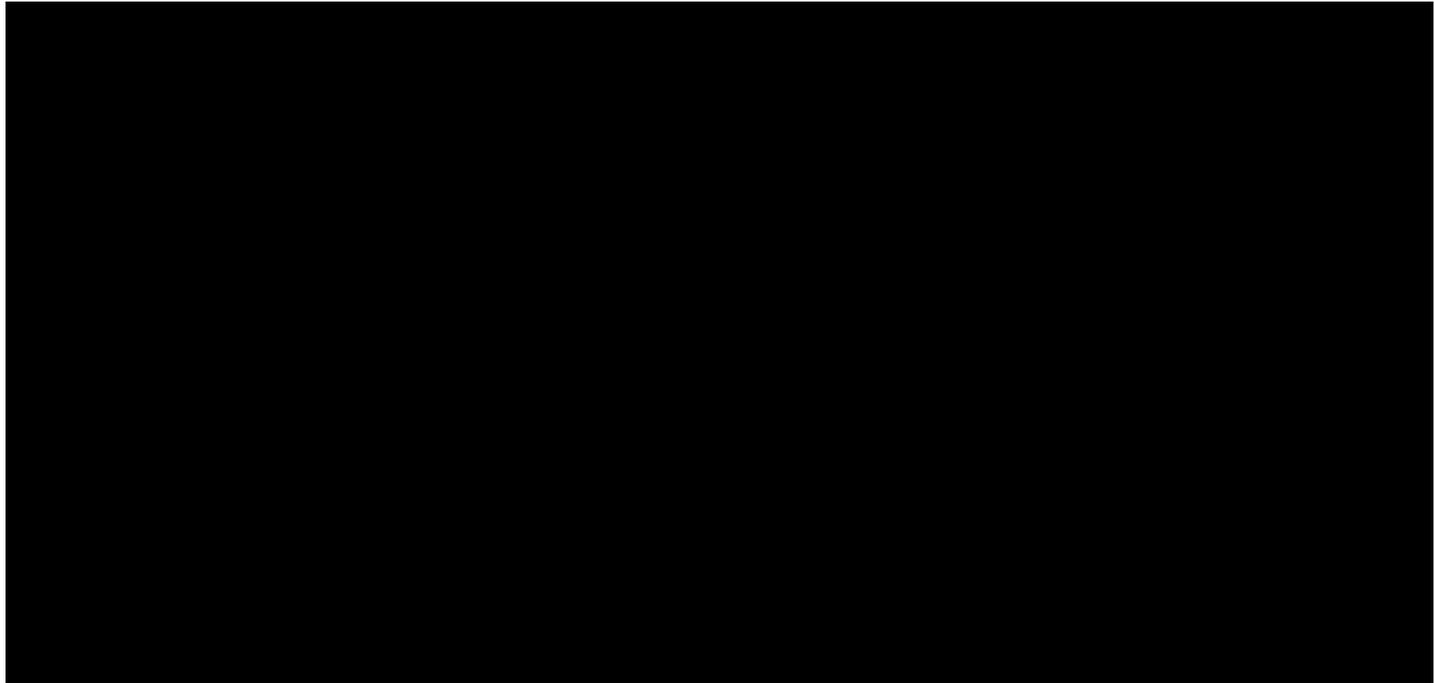

The Sacramento teachers union won the raises it wanted. Who loses? The kids.

MAY 05, 2019 02:40 AM

SPONSORED CONTENT

By continuing to use this site, you give your consent to our use of cookies for analytics, personalization and ads. Read more

Celebrate Cinco De Mayo with This Spicy Twist on the Classic Margarita

Taking from the rich and giving it to you: Democrats have 'Robin Hood' tax plans this year

MAY 06, 2019 12:00 AM

By continuing to use this site, you give your consent to our use of cookies for analytics, personalization and ads. Read more

READ NEXT

VIEWPOINTS

Want to curb hate crimes? Require students to study tolerance in college

By continuing to use this site, you give your consent to our use of cookies for analytics, personalization and ads. Read more

Instead of a few hours of reading about the Holocaust, make a tolerance course a core requirement for receiving an undergraduate degree for California college students. This can help reduce hate crimes.

KEEP READING →

Unlimited Digital Access: Only $0.99 For Your First Month

#ReadLocal

Get full access to The Sacramento Bee content across all your devices.

SAVE NOW

MORE VIEWPOINTS

OPINION

Kidney donors save lives. They deserve job protection and access to insurance

MAY 01, 2019 12:01 AM

VIEWPOINTS

Long parole terms waste taxpayer money. Here's one way to fix a broken system

APRIL 30, 2019 12:01 AM

VIEWPOINTS

To address climate threat, California must lead the way on green bonds

APRIL 30, 2019 12:01 AM

VIEWPOINTS

Addiction takes a heavy toll on restaurant workers. SB 11 can help them heal

APRIL 24, 2019 12:01 AM

VIEWPOINTS

Latino youth will shape the future, but only if we make a big mark on 2020

APRIL 24, 2019 12:01 AM

SPONSORED CONTENT

Sephora Lovers, Want 10% Off?

BY SEPHORA

TAKE US WITH YOU

Real-time updates and all local stories you want right in the palm of your hand.

THE SACRAMENTO BEE APP →

VIEW NEWSLETTERS →

SUBSCRIPTIONS

Start a Subscription

Customer Service

eEdition

Vacation Hold

Pay Your Bill

Rewards

LEARN MORE

About Us

Contact Us

Newsletters

News in Education

Photo Store

ADVERTISING

Place a Classified Ad

Place a Legal Notice

Place a Digital Ad

Place a Newspaper Ad

COPYRIGHT

COMMENTING POLICY

By continuing to use this site, you give your consent to our use of cookies for analytics, personalization and ads. Read more

CORRECTIONS POLICY

PRIVACY POLICY

TERMS OF SERVICE

